Faced with dramatic changes in all spheres of society, the 2017 Conference in Paris is organised by EASSW and UNAFORIS in partnership and under the high patronage of UNESCO. It aims at devising new teaching approaches to address the implications of these new challenges. By encouraging discussion and exchange on four major themes, this initiative will enable participants to make a significant contribution to the quality of social work education in the future.

Main themes of the conference:

1. Promoting a sustainable future in social work education: prospects, methodology, research and innovatory practice.
2. Curriculum development and the content of social work education for challenging boundaries
3. Ethical issues: teaching ethics and being ethical teachers for a sustainable social work education
4. Structural and organizational conditions and professional status for sustainable social work in the future

The conference will include traditional style presentations, parallel sessions, workshop presentations, contributions to symposia, round table discussions and master classes in social work education. Contributions based on research or practice experience are both welcomed as are those from user lead organizations and groups.
